Startling Revelations in the Toppan Many Fpeople Witnessed the "Last Days of Pompeii" Last Night.

> fore in the Entire State-Unequalled Fireworks.

The . most magnificent spectacular protection ever witnessed in Kentucky is undechtedly Pain's "Last Days of Pempeii," which was given for the first time last night at Sixteenth and Monroe streets to over 1,000 people. The stupendons affair is something that people who have never seen any. thing of the kind cannot comprehend until they witness it. IInndreds went there last night with no adequate idea of the gigantic proportious of the display. They were amazed as well as entertained, and many were heard to declare that they intended going avary night.

The great spectacle of "Last Days of Pompeii" is one of Pain's great successes. Its has produced it for twalve years, and now has six companies on the road, doing an enormons business. It requires hundreds of men of techni, cal, artistic and histrionic ability to properly put them on, and the result dinner last night at Buckingham pal- ency of the Duke of Norfolk, the earl Mary O. The soldiers, giadiators, dancing girls and cthers make an extremely pretty sight as they march about to the specialty arranged music. There are legious of them, and they form a cootinnons stream for some little time before the OFFICERS, WARNED BY THE WO MAN IN THE OASE, APPEAR IN THE NIOK OF TIME.

Knoxviile, Tenn., June 24-One of the most sensational instances of modern chivairy which has come to light in many days was that which occurred in this city Sunday at daybreak between two of the most prominent young men in town, when they met in a secinded spot to fight to the death a duel for the hand of Miss Florence E. Fair, one of the young belies of the senson. The parties concerned in the affair, over which every possible effort for secrecy had been observed, are the young lady named, Prof. Frank Nelson, organist at St. John's church; James Chaslyn Smith, a prominent lawyer; Ralph Hommel and Aionzo Cain, both popular young men socially, the latter two acting as soconds.

Miss Fair is a masic papil of Prof. Nelson. Both he and Attorney Smith are rivais for her favor. Saturday she was' promenading Gay street with the diately went to work for the Postal latter, when they were approached by Nelson, who made some entting remark to Smith, the latter taking it so to heart that he finally wrote a formal chailenge to Nelson. The latter accepted and seconds were chosen, Ralph Hommel for Nelson and Alonso Cain for Smith. A seoluded spot in the cedars at Magnolia park was the aite selected. Dr. O. J. St. John was animmoned for medical aid.

In closed backs they drove to the scene about 4 o'clook. The men had taken positions on the field, ten paces apart, and their revolvers were raised, whea a patroi wagon full of policemen and specials rushed to tha scene. They had been warned by Miss Fair.

A Case of Innompia.

There he wisted and he screemed, and his mammy didn't know
Wherefore his woe,

Just a little six months' baby in a city

tenement—
There were half a dozen others and but littie time was spant tie time was spent In maternal disgnosis of the little shaver's case.

So he hotlered nights and daytimes till the neighbors round the place.

By the squestings and the squalling of the youngster driven wild,

Well, she grumbled at the mandate, but at last the mammy did. As she was bid. And a bluff and busy doctor, very saggy,

case;
Then he shouted to the mammy: "Take a rea and wash his face!
Youngster's wild for want o' sleep, ma'am—that's the reason why he cries.
But his mug's so thund'rin' dirty that he cannot shut his eyes."
Simple thinal And yet the doctor won the neighbors' grateful praise;
—Youngster dropped asleep at once, sir, and he siumbered three whole days.

Have Charity. Have charity for others' views.
And do not think you're always right
And everybody slee is wrong.
If they see things not in your light,
God gave us all our different views,
To best develop each one's soul,
And, though we tread not the same path,
We still may reach the same blest goal.

Forbearance with each other try, Ifavs charity for others' views; Forbearance, love and charity, A wondrous power will infuse into the heart, and make the world feem tike a much more joyous piace, They'll scatter sunshine alt around, And brighten every happy face.

It was Christ's lesson here on arth—
Have charity for all mankind,
And not unjustly to condems,
But help the weak, the poor and bilnd.
And try to teach Christ's better ways,
With purest thoughts e'er fill the mind;
By thus developing the soul,
Life's greatest blessings we shallfind.

She studied music in Berlin
And also in Paree,
Ant pa was fond of boasting of
The artist she would be,
She spent three years abroad, and then,
One day, came salling home again
To arace societes.

Pa bought a grand plane; oh
How she could play the thing!
It seemed as easy as you please
For her to break a string—
Ah, yes, it was a treat to sit
And hear her rip things out of te—
Moreover, she could sing!

She fell in love, as maidens will,
And what did daddy say?
Ha stormed around outrageously,
Wherefore she ran away!

As Aprit shower.

Itark! hear the warm rein falling
From Aprits changeful skies;
The wild flowers in the woodlands
Laugh out in sweet surprise,
As, wakened from their dremning
Beneath the tast year's teaves,
They see on hill and meadow
The web the apringtime weaves.

The rohin in the maple
Bings fitfully and low,
As if but hair remembered
The song he used to know;
His little heart is happy,
As from his burnished wing,
In pauses of his singing.
He shakes the rain of spring.

The hude on eim and willow
Seem growing as we look;
Spring legends are repeated
By every breeze and brook.
The air is full of fragrence,
The sky is brighter blue;
One hour of April weather
Has made the old world new,

How beautifut to be dead!
Where nothing dreams or grieves,
To lie where sunshine weaves.
The shadows of the leaves
Above my head.
How hissed to be dead!

How beautiful to be dead!
The angulah to forget,
The turnoil and the fret,
The sharpness of regret—
All calm instead.
How gracious to be dead!

How beautiful to be dead!
To be alone again,
Safe from the struggle vain,
The tired, insistent pain,
The noises overhead.
How peaceful to be dead!

How beautiful to be dead:
Life, I have borne thee long.
But all thy strife and wrong.
Some day shall melt to song,
and then be fied.
Some day I shall be dead.

man, for whom all the other giris had made a cast, to use a piscatorial ainilie, and had failed to get a atrike. Now, there was as well as James Parker one John Meadowcroft. Meadowcroft had e big truck farm out beyond Bowmanville. Curlous thing, but Meadowcroft worked his farm himself. He was a big feilow, something more than a trifle awkward, hut with e fine head and a good feee. He hed an education and no eapital except that which was represented by some acrea of onlon. represented by some acres of onion, carrot and potato beds and some hundreds of square feet of giass, unhundreds of square feet of gisss, under which the roses end carnations reached perfection when the wister hissts how and the optimistic anow husting whistles in the ficids. John Meadowcroft was a garduate of the Amherat egriculturel college. Just what had turned him to farming people did not generally understand. A good guess would have made it that bleadowcroft loved the country better than the town and took to gerdening so that he could live at all times where he could smell the soil and see some clouds besides those of and see some ejouds besides those of

One aummer day a number of young people drove out heyond Bow-mnuvile to see the massed color and beauty of a great field of flowers, which the newspepers had made picfarmer. He had a pretty place for a home. It was naturally pretty, and John Meedoweroft knew how to enhnnce its attractiveness. James Parker was there that dey, and be-ing a man of seamen and worldly wisdom he saw that Meadowcroft, wisdom he saw that Meadowcroft, the farmer, thought that Francea Marvin was more to be admired than any flower of his field; love them all though he did, from the thiesa biosom to the hig fleunting peony.

James Parker, and he welked with them when the skopping was done. It was one of those afternoons when the sun and the general hrightness of things con make even a welk in the amoky streets of Chicago picasant. Parker suggested that they walk home. When they had reached the corner of South Water street their way as usuel was harred by great sacks und boxes. Parker had had one or two reasons of late to actually book with just a suspicion of jesious apprehension et a certein farmer from Bowmanville. He could not forhear pointing with his cane, with a sort of a amile to make it appear that he considered it in the light of n joke, at some plecards which appeared shove the sacks and boxes et the South Water street corner. The pointing was herdly neces-aary, for Frunces Marvin's quick eyes had caught their aignificance. This is what they reed:

MEADOWCROFT'S MILD ONIONS. MEADOWCROFT'S PRIME POTA-TOES.

People aif had it fixed that Francea Marvin was to marry James Parker. The girl helf-way thought as herself. She knew that several times Parker

She knew that several times Parker was on the point of a deciaration.

"Not yet," the girl had seid to herself and she had averted diplomaticself and she had averted diplomatic-oily the crisis, though she was he-gineing to thisk one day it would come and she would say yes. Her mother urged her sed her own knowledge told her of an essy future es the wife of e man who had what was needful and pleaty more.

One day the board of managers of the Mortimer Pierce Hospital for Crip-ples held a meeting. Funda were needed and a cumher of the young wom-en of society who were laterested in the charity agreed to ask some of those whom they knew were well ahle to give to help cloug the cause. Frances Marvin was one of the solleiting committee. I'erhaps the mother was wiser than most is her generation, for she suggested to Frances that they sak James Parker for a contribution. She and her mother went down-town and at the mother's suggestion went into the office of Jomes l'arker, atockholder. Mr. Parker wesn't in. The office boy, who was new and not up to snuff, snid that Mr. Parker was in his other office further down the street. "Yon'ii find him on the third floor at the coreer," said the boy.

Mrs. Marvin and her deughter did not know that James Parker hed two offices. They reached the third floor of the corner building. It weas a dingy place and on a rather dirty glass door appeared "J. Pnrker, Loans." They entered. There wes an ante-room with two amalier rooms hevond enparated entered. There we san age-room with two smaller rooms beyond aeperated from the first hy a glass partition. A boy told them to sit down and Mr. Parker would be at iciaure in e few minutes. Thee—they conidn't help it—they heard a conversation. The voices were those of a men and a women and the wavelength of the them. an, and the man's voice was thet of James Parker. The conversation ran iike this: "I can't help lt, madam; ten per cent, a month is what you agreed to pay and what you are hound to pay by this writing. You have aiready paid me, you say, on amount equal to the principal. That has nothing to do with it. If you can't pay you shouldn't borrow."

"We are in trouble at home, Mr.

Parker, and I wish you could be a bit easy with us."
"You should have thought of all thet before, madam. This debt is legiti-mate, end the lew can't pick a hole in it. I want and must have my money or your furniture goes."

There was something like a dry sob from the inner room. With a common from the inner room. With a common impuise Mrs. Marvin and her daughter rose and left the room, though not till each had placed a card before the office hoy, saying, softly: "Tell him we were here." When they received we were here." When they received the atreet and were hurrying along an though to get eway from a neighborhood of contamination, the girl asid: "Mother, I have heard of such things, that men in business made much of their money is other businesses of which only a small part of the world knew anything. I did not know that Mr. Parker was one of these."

Some time after this a little porty of people went to Bowmanville to ace the flowers. John Meadowcroft met people went to Bowmanville to ace the flowers. John Meadowcroft met the visitors at the gete. Ile had a wounded squirrei in his hand. There was a tender solicitude in his eye as which the newspopers had made ple-tures of and written nbout: It was "the thing" to go out to that spot of ioveliness during that month of hloa-soma. It was there that Francea Mervin first anw John Meadowcroft, happened in a down-town office not long before. Something like a thought of comparison went through her mind, and not even the feet that a faint odor knowledge that here was the men.

People don't know yet how it came ahout, hut just before Ash Wednesday some one who didn't know about it some one who didn't know about it, quizzed James Parker about Frances Marvin, and asked when it was to be. "Don't yon know," seid Parker, and his face was a hit white. "She married the 'man with the hoe.' "—Cbicego Record-Heraid.

An Old-Fachloned Woman,
No clever, brilliant thinker she,
With college record and degree.
She has not known the paths of fame,
The world has never heard her name.
Home is her kingdom, love her dower—
She seeks no other wand of power.
Around her childish hearts are twined,
As round some reverend saint enshrieed,
And find all purity and good
In her divincest motherhood.
She keeps her faith unshedowed still—
God rules the earth in good sad ill.

PLAN NOW FOR FOR COLORADO. SCHEME OF SUMMER TOURS.
The Burlington Route makes the most attractive excursion rates to Colorado Resorts that have ever been made. For long periods of the summer we make such remarkably low first-class round trip rates ably low rist-class round trip rates to Denver, Colorado Springs and Maniton, as $21.00 from St. Louis $15.00 from Kansas City, $25 from Chicago; good all summer; at other periods, only one fare plus $2.00 round trip.

CHEAP TO PACIFIC COAST. TOO.

May 27th to June 8th, August 2d to 8th. Round trip good 6o days, variable routes; from 8t, Louis $47.50, from Chicago $50 Missouri River $45.00; all lower than the one-way rate; only $11.00 more between Frisco and Portland; first-class, good in chair cars (seats free), standard sleepers or Through Tourists Sleeper Excursions. Chief Tourists Sleeper Excursions. Chief Coast route, the Burlington to through Scenic Colorado. Salt Lake.

COOL MINNESOTA. 10,000 lakes; scores of coolest and best summer localities in the country; frequent periods of low Summer rates.
